News from Trinity Oaks

Trinity Oaks—A Senior Living Community, 728 Klumac Road Salisbury, North Carolina 28144

Oh, the Places You'll Go!

What do people do with themselves once they are freed from the responsibilities of maintaining a house and yard? They leave their apartments and cottages and travel the world! A maintenance-free lifestyle allows you to leave your worries on the doorstep and adventure to Athens, New Zealand, Costa Rica, Portugal or wherever your interests take you. Travel is one of the hidden benefits of the Trinity Oaks lifestyle.

Clockwise from above: Russ and Nancy Gavitt in Italy; Missy and Henry Brown in New Zealand; Barb and Barry Whenal in Athens; Connie Hurlocker in Costa Rica with a monkey and an alligator; Richard and Pat Paschall in Swallow Falls, Wales; Barb and Barry at the Acropolis in Athens, Kathy and Bill Gregg in Lisbon, Portugal.

Inside Assisted Living

The new Assisted Living wing at Trinity Oaks is open and filled with activity. On the right is one of the beautiful rooms and on page 2 are other views from inside this attractive and home-like area. Trinity Oaks residents have access to this and higher levels of health care. Come and enjoy the active lifestyle with peace of mind that personal healthcare is here when you need it.

The best chapter of your life begins with Trinity Oaks!

Welcome Neighbors

Michael and Patty Weeks have moved to a cottage from Mt. Gilead, North Carolina, near the Uwharrie National Forest. Michael, who is still working in social science research, enjoys reading, exercise & volunteer work. Patty, a retired occupational health registered nurse, enjoys art and church activities. Their children are Katherine Lusch of Mooresville, Michael of Kenmore, Washington and Adam of Raleigh. The Weeks have been members of First United Methodist in Mt. Gilead for over ten years.

Reba "Lorene" Thomas moved to a Trinity Oaks apartment from High Point, North Carolina. She is a retired stay-at-home mom who enjoys ballroom dancing, reading and knitting. Lorene's daughter Nicole Hodges lives in Kernersville.

Mary Anne Scherff left Greensboro for an apartment at Trinity Oaks. She is a retired piano teacher and a gardener. Her children are Jo Anne Mullis of Salisbury, Mike Oakley of Greensboro and Paul Scherff of Stokesdale, North Carolina. Mary Anne is a member of Trinity Church (Evangelical Covenant) in Greensboro.

November 1: Piedmont Player's Theater presents . . .

Wait Until Dark: Even if you saw the movie with Audrey Hepburn, there are enough twists and turns to the plot that you will be surprised by the heroine's ingenuity. The play starts at 7:30 p.m.

November 7: A Day in the Park: Phyllis Kluttz of Rowan Senior Games is treating us to a day at Dan Nicholas Park complete with lunch and a talk by Animal Services Director Bob Pendergrass. We will be gem mining, touring the zoo, hiking, paddle boating and yes, riding the carousel!

November 8: Little Women—The Musical: Lee Street Theatre does it again with the story of the March sisters set to music. The musical made its Broadway debut in 2005. See it in Salisbury with Trinity Oaks!

November 10: Salisbury Symphony Jazz Night: We journey to Livingstone College for this salute to jazz.

November 11: Legacy of Motown Revue: The Lincolnton Concert Association takes you back to the days of the Drifters, Coasters, Jacksons, Earth Wind & Fire, Temptations and so many more legendary groups. Featuring talented performers plus an amazing six-piece horn band.

November 12: Price of Freedom Museum: This important World War II museum is right here in China Grove. We'll spend our post-Veterans Day remembering that freedom isn't free.

November 13: Two Events, One Big Day: We start off at the famous Hanes Bakery in Winston-Salem for their oh-so-wonderful Moravian cookies. We end the day at Davidson College for their United in Music concert honoring Grammy Award-winning clarinetist, composer, and improviser, Kinan Azmeh.

November 16: Historian Terry Holt: Retired teacher Terry Holt brings history alive in Rowan Museum's History Course. This afternoon his topic is Native Americans.

November 17: Seagrove Pottery Festival: There are three pottery centers in North Carolina: Catawba Valley, Buncombe County and Seagrove. Potters abound at this annual festival.

November 19: Southern Supreme Fruitcake: We travel to Bear Creek to this iconic shop for chocolate, nuts, candy and yes, fruitcake.

November 21: 'Tis the Season Spectacular Parade: A busload of Trinity Oaks staff and residents will be in this new rendition of the Spencer-Salisbury holiday parade.

November 27: Christmas Tree Shop, Greensboro: Need Christmas decorations? Look no further than this popular destination.

November 28: Davidson College Holiday Gala: Always a sell out, but we have tickets to this yearend celebration with choirs, orchestra, jazz band, soloists and dancers.

Prospective Residents:
Let us know if you are interested in any of our outings. We will check availability for you.

Trinity Oaks Lifestyle

Trinity Oaks University traveled to Berea College, Berea, Kentucky, to experience this unique liberal arts work college. Here students with limited resources work their way through college and graduate with little or no debt. After a campus tour, we toured the shops and restaurants in Berea. Fun trip!
