Dear Lambeth House Friends and Supporters,

What an honor to be selected as the new Board Chair for the Lambeth House Foundation. The Foundation Board is made up of 17 individuals who are dedicated to the success of Lambeth House and its vital role in our community. It will continue to be our goal to work on ideas that promote superior senior living and promote Lambeth House as a premier senior living community nationwide. There is true dedication and enthusiasm from this dynamic board.

I am married to Whit Huguley and we are very committed to the city of New Orleans. Neither of us are from here, but as my husband says, "we got here as quick as we could." Whit and I have three children - Whitfield, 29, lives in California where he works for a private Equity Firm. Helena, 26, lives in Costa Rica and works for a coffee company. Our youngest son Geordie, 23, lives right here in New Orleans and attends St. Michael's Special School. We are truly blessed.

I already know so many residents at Lambeth House that I adore. I hope to meet many others as I work with Natalie Hooks, Foundation Director, and others over the course of the next year. I, like everyone else, look forward to the Annual Lambeth House Foundation Gala in October. It's a terrific event that supports the many goals of this foundation. I do hope our paths cross soon, but until then, I am honored and excited to be involved here at Lambeth House.

Marion Huguley

St. Michael's Andrew Ellinghausen works with Seth Demberg in the Wellness Center

Lambeth House has partnered with the Exploration Academy at St. Michael's Special School (EA). The EA program increases positive post-school outcomes for young adults 18-25. The students are immersed in on- and off-campus real world scenarios and work experiences. Students currently join Lambeth House on a voluntary basis with plans to move into a paid position as their skills develop. Each student is partnered with a "job coach" which will help them succeed in their tasks. Areas where their skills will be utilized: activities, the Wellness Center, food and beverage.

Historic Letter Collection

Bill and Julie Penick, Lambeth House residents, started collecting original handwritten historic letters around 1990. Today, this impressive collection of 43 letters is on display at Lambeth House along the walls between the Main Lobby and Martin's Landing. What began initially as an interest in black and white photography and history segued into a journey of incredible letter collecting.

Bill Penick

"It all started by thumbing through catalogs that had historical documents for sale. The first letter we purchased was written by Napoleon," said Bill Penick. After the first letter was purchased, their name began to appear on other mailing lists for catalogs and at auction houses. Penick states, "We became hooked and the letter collection began to grow." The collection was never intended to be an investment, strictly to satisfy historical interest.

The collection includes original letters from national military leaders, writers, philosophers, revolutionaries, and scientists. Names such as Queen Elizabeth, Sir Isaac Newton, Abraham Lincoln, Sun Yat-Sen, Louis Pasteur and Tolstoy make up this notable and extraordinary collection.

The Penicks were quite fascinated with who signed the letter, the recipient of the particular letter, the content and the date of the letter. Although Mr. Penick says he doesn't have a favorite, there are a few that stand out to him -- the handwritten Bible pages, Horatio Nelson, and the Cuneiform which dates back to 2000 B.C.

Lambeth House is extremely proud to house this historic letter collection and grateful to the Penicks for allowing such a display to adorn the halls. If you have not yet spent time reading these letters, we invite you to do so. It's a history lesson you won't soon forget.
